SIMPLY Red Devil Pride

Simply Red Devil Pride.

With a school size of 1216 it's easy to say that we don't have the biggest school or even town. If you were to look at us from an outside point-of-view you'd probably say this was a pretty simple small farm town. And you would be half right, we are a small farm town. But to describe this school in one word would be impossible. How could you put a brand on our academic prowess, or a name on our athletic aptitude, find a label that fits our artistic ingenuity, You simply can't. We are who we are, and carry with us the name Lovett Red Devils, a name thats well known by our fans and even more known by our opponents as a term not to be taken lightly. Through and through our pride, our prestige, and our fortitude are too great to be classified by any word or phrase, other than

Red Devil Pride.

Summer Break

Devils' side of the Sun

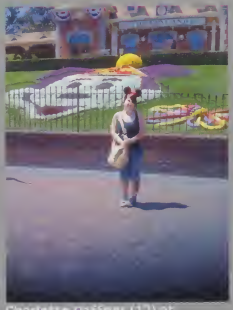

While we waited impatiently to hear that final bell on the last day of school, we were filled with excitement. Once liberated, we had to find things to do with our free time. Whether that was going out to a concert, heading down to Disneyland , trying new foods, or dressing in tin foil, we managed to find something creative to do during the summer of 2010, oftentimes work or summer practices.

For many students, summer break is the time to find a job and begin to take responsibility. When asked what she did with her days off, Kayla Calton (12) said, "My favorite place was probably Tinley Park where I got to see all the concerts." Some students spent demanding and tiring hours at the school practicing for their next season. For others, everyday was truly a relaxing day off. When asked what her most memorable moment was from the summer, Josie Leibrand (12) said, "I got to go inner tubing with my sister, her sister, and my brother-in-law. I ended up flipping twice and got a nasty bruise on my leg."

From carefree moments to times where we are just acting silly, every day of summer was spent creating memories and living in the moment. No matter how bad a bruise or how many pictures we took, the moments of summer 2010 will not be forgotten because they are sketched into our minds forever.

"Play With Passion" (Coach Kilmer)

With a record of 6 and 4, the varsity football team finished another season. Having a new coach gave the Red Devils a fresh challenge. "Everyone responded well to the new switch, although the beloved Coach Kennedy would be forever missed. It was a season of adversity, mature fashion, injuries, some heartbreak, but overall, nothing slowed the team down. It was all about putting quality product on the field," Coach Kilmer said.

The first victory over Morton High (40-26) was Coach Kilmer's best memory. It was a heartwarming win, for it was his first game won as a coach. "Coach Kilmer is a funny guy, he can be intimidating at times but it's only because he knows what we are capable of and he wants us to do everything 110%," Tony Mauer (10) said.

The team then went on to beat Kankakee Valley, Highland, Hammond High, Munster, and Andrean. "I think the team this year was different than last year's, which is expected," Jeremy Crocker (11) said. For the most part, it was a season of adversity. They spent long hours after school sweating, fighting, and pushing hard to make sure the RDP football program will truly live on. Congratulations to the team and the new coach for living up to the expectations.

Thursday Takedown

The time is five fifty-five p.m.. The chill in the air is developing and a sea of parents, friends, grandparents, and siblings are finding their seats and grabbing their blankets to keep warm. They look to the right and an army of boys in black are coming out to the field ready to get a victory. Their faces have a variety of expressions; some are serious, others jittery, and a select few are grinning with faces of anticipation and excitement. The guys look up; they see the team they will be competing against that night and all expressions on every one of the players turns to a face of determination and commitment.

The clock runs down the end of the first half of the game; it is halftime. The boys and coaches go to the end zone ready to come together as a team. The faces of the boys have changed from fresh and clean cut, to tired and more determined than ever with a bucket of sweat dripping off their faces onto their uniforms. "Before the game I think about what I can do to make us win and giving the game 250%," #66 Jefferey Allen (9) said. He is one of the many boys who devote their summers and falls to red devil football.

With a season ending 8-1 record, the boys, who after four months of hard work are now more like young men have gained a lot both mentally, physically, and emotionally. These young men are more mature mentally, have learned respect towards one another as well as others, and are prepared to take on anything the life of a freshman may throw at them. Coach Bob Wragg says, "We came a long way and they matured as a team and seemed to really grasp what RDP is all about."

Girls Golf

All the Memories

When asking the 11 teammates what made their golf season so memorable, most commented on how the team felt more like a family than a group of high schoolers playing a sport. "Everyone was really close and I couldn't have asked for a better senior year!" said Shelbi Hardin (12). The putting contest, the big bus, and several other recollections created one fun-filled season.

This year had some record setting accomplishments. The team had broken the home record of 185 to 178. The girls also beat Munster, one tough competitor. The team ended the season with an impressive record of 13–4. It was also a monumental year off the course. The girls finally got rid of the short bus, achieving a normal bus, proving exciting for the girls.

Even though the girls golf season does not last for very long, the memories provide enough excitement to last the entire year.

Back to Basics

If the boy's tennis team was a soap opera, they would definitely win an Emmy. Plagued by coaching changes and injuries to key members, the Devils prevailed into a good finish in their conference. Right from the beginning, the Devils were faced with adversity. Their head coach left the team early on due to personal reasons and the team was left without a leader. Lost and not knowing what to do, the Devils brought back an old friend to take the reins. "We were all very excited when (Coach) Hudak came back to the team. He brings a certain energy that no one else can," Matt Hilbrich (12) stated. Coach Hudak retired at the end of last season but when he saw what had happened with his former team, he could not just sit and watch them struggle. With their coach in hand, the Devils went on to post an 2-9 record before losing in the first round of sectionals to powerhouse, Crown Point. With the return of their coach and leadership provided by the seniors, the team finished its season with heart and emotion.

Going The Distance

The scent of freshly cut grass flows through the wind. The sound of rock music travels through the ear and the adrenaline begins to build. It's ten in the morning on a Saturday and the boys are ready to go. This is the Boy's Soccer team at Lowell High School. The buzzer gives a startling blow and they begin the game. Freshman Noah Newcomb (9) blocks the goal box like a tiger, shooting down any possible opportunities.

This game could be compared to watching a suspenseful legend. The boys are like an army, fighting bravely with every drop of their souls. The ball is their weapon as it races down the field as the timer counts the seconds left to victory. Aaron Burgans (11) and Erick Tiemens (11) defend our goalie while John Ison (12) and Omar Balderas (12) steal the ball back. The crowd goes insane when the last goal is scored by Lowell as the buzzer sounds. With grass stained knees and elbows they stand united. Starting Over

"Coach Benji, what are we doing again?" Lauren Kalvaitis (9) asked very confused. This seemed to be the reoccurring question throughout the season. But who can blame them? A new coach, lots of brand new freshman, and brand new coaching methods seemed to contribute to the change that was hard to adapt to. However, just like every great team, the Lowell JV girls' soccer team adapted and did amazingly well under the circumstances. "It's not everyday you come across a team that can adapt and improve so much after such change," boasted coach Benji. Every game they improved something else. At every practice they strived to improve their flaws. It is no doubt this JV team has high hopes for their Varsity future.

The Three Challenges

Trade weakness for strength. Trade doubt for belief. Trade fear for courage. The end result? The varsity girls soccer team. In less than five minutes it was easy to see that the girls played and practiced by these three standards each and every day. With new coaches, Ben Alvira and Jorie Furman, change was the only common expectation among the team. "We were all nervous to see how the season would turn out," Megan Gramhofer (11) explained, "It's scary to lose both your coaching you have to start over fresh." Adjustment came quick and the initial fear was overcome leaving both the girls and coaches acting as if they had been playing together forever. Once the team chemistry was established it was on to the test of trusting one another and performing as a team. The first few games were a struggling to build confidence, whether it was as an individual or a team. "We didn't always have faith in each other, but when we did great things would happen," Nikki Melendez (12) exclaimed. When the girls were able to rely on each other they transformed into a team that not only got along great but played great as well. Despite their record, the girls felt they accomplished a lot and had a successful season. "I know we all learned tons of new things and now just a matter of taking those lessons and perfecting them for next season" Alison Johnson (11) said. It is safe to say these girls value soccer more than anything.

We Run as One

Love. Encouragement. Care. Passion. These are just some of the many qualities evident in an LHS cross country runner. "We're just like a family, a sistership I will never forget," Alli Kemling (12) said. By spending so much time together and sharing so many great experiences, the girls inevitably created a bond. Whether it was winning the Hobart Invite or finishing second at sectionals, the girls became one happy family. "The best part of the season was Sarah Wieser (9) and her towel of shame," Krystina Murphy (12) said. As the season wrapped up it was time to say goodbye to the seniors. "I will miss their passion and intensity for Cross Country; they were very devoted to our sport and enjoyed passing that drive along to the younger runners," Coach Coil said. "I really appreciated that everyone was friendly to one another," Emma Turner (9) said. With a rollercoaster of a season, the teammates trudged through the lows and soared through the highs, proving to be true Red Devils.

Exhausted and dripping in sweat, the boys gather to celebrate their victory

A Band of Brothers

Sweat, will-power, and an unbreakable bond. When speaking to the Boys Red Devil Cross Country captains Brandon Bullitt (11), Cole Bushore (11), and Alexander Hernandez (12), all strongly agreed that without these three things, their team would not be the strong, driven competitors that they are now.

Some of the boys gather up for a quick photo after placing 5th at regionals out of 32 other teams.

"Getting your mojo back is always a challenge at the start of a new season," Tyler Munjas (11) said, "but when you've got such great friends by your side helping you over those obstacles, it doesn't seem so tough." Whether they were anticipating the air-horn to begin a race or hydrating on the sidelines, the team was always sharing a good laugh or two. After a season of hard work, sweat, good times, and many early-morning practices, the boys concluded a successful season with a 5th place at regionals. When asked about the outcome of the season, Adam DeValk (11) said, "Next year, we're going to attack the competition even harder and show them all what us Red Devils are made of."

History in the Making

The ball is slammed past the blockers and lands in front of the ten-foot line for a game-winning kill. The bench jumps up and joins the ecstatic players already on the court. The whole team runs over and embraces its coach who is shedding tears of happiness. This is the scene of the volleyball team winning their last conference game of the season. The girls made school history by ending the season with an undefeated 12-0 conference record. Although they had been planning on finishing the season with a sectional win, they still had an amazing year that definitely did not go unnoticed.

Aside from making school history, there were many new things this year that made this particular volleyball season unique. The program held it's first ever "Blackout" and "Volley for a Cure" nights. The team packed the stands and had more fans than ever before, including an unusually rowdy student section. They also gave back to the community by raising over $3,000 for the American Cancer Society.

On the other hand, the one thing that always stays consistent about the volleyball program from year to year was apparent again this year, their ability to play as a family. "This season was amazing," libero Chloe White (11) said. "Our team chemistry was awesome and that is what made the season so much fun!" Whether it was dominating conference rivals on the court, or carving pumpkins and having "Just Dance" competitions at the annual team sleepover, this team's unity paid off in the end.

Come Together

UNO, DOS, TRES, ACE, ACE, ACE!" "CHICA CHICK, BOOM!" These are the loud cheers that fill the gym at a Junior Varsity volleyball game. These girls worked very hard over the season and had many accomplishments. "This season, we have become a lot closer as a team. Last year we all wanted to rip each others throats out, but now we don't want to leave each other," Alyssa Cory (10) said. "I'm going to miss seeing everybody in the locker room after school," Brittney Korth (10) stated. These girls have united as more than a team this season, they are now family. The girls had an eventful season with one of their biggest accomplishments in the Munster game. "Even though we lost, I felt that one of our biggest accomplishments was taking Munster to three games," Kaitlyn Henson (10) said. "We saw each others' weaknesses and strengths on and off the court, and that helped us work as a team and fight toward the end of the season," Hannah Felder (10) stated. When asked about their favorite part of the season, the girls provided different answers. "My favorite part of the season was Purdue camp during the summer it was so cold!" Tess Perfetti (10) said. "I think my favorite part of the season was the team bonding night, we all had so much fun together, we laughed all night," Tori Nida (10) and Jessica Monos (10) agreed. These girls will always be a team no matter what. It does not matter if they win or lose, if they are happy or sad, or if they're waiting for a new bus at nine o'clock after a game singing Christmas carols; their bond will forever be.

Upon entering the Lowell High School gymnasium, you are overwhelmed with the smell of sweat, tears, and heartache. In comparison to playing together in eighth grade, Kristina Rosenbaum (9) said, "The dedication and skill level were a lot different this year. I became better fundamentally, and the team became really close." Throughout the course of the season, the girls became closer as a team and better on the court. Turnin' Up the Heat

The stunt group that went to state practices at their own competition, the Invicta Invite.

Harder stunts. Intense tumbling. Booming voices. This was the vocabulary of the Lowell High School Cheerleaders. Starting in June, this team prepared intensely for their upcoming competitive season. "We've never attended this many competitions in one season," coach Jennifer Lenzo stated. "However, it's one way these girls can prove their talent to everyone." As they got one step closer to competition every practice, their mental state also grew with intensity. Don't step on the mat lines, stick it, throw my back-handspring strong. The girls performed their routine in their heads over and over again everyday the competitions grew closer. "It's all I could think about. 'Don't mess up!' is what I kept repeating," laughed Alex Damm (12). Every dropped stunt during practice and every word that was screamed at them ultimately prepared them for the moment that they experienced right before they stepped onto the mat. "There's nothing more intense than the moment right before you go on when nothing else matters but your team," gushed Brittany Ulanowski (11). "It's truly why this sport is me."

Heal stretches were just one of the many stunts the team could do Here they practice at a game before competition.

Fall Academics

In the Shoes of a LHS Student

Walking through the halls of Lowell High School at eight o'clock in the morning, you might think you're not even in a school. As students roam the halls with their friends and test their abilities to make it to class on time, they sometimes forget what they're even here for. "To most people, the learning part of school isn't important, but as you get older it really becomes crucial to get good grades. I know that I made mistakes my freshman and sophomore year, and now I'm trying to make up for it" said Kelsey Lukasik (11).

For some students, it's a struggle to try and get good grades, but for others it just feels natural. "I get good grades, but I never really study. School just comes really easy to me. It's not a huge problem in my life like some people" said Grant Weinnman (9). For those who don't always excel academically, they can always rely on a teacher. "I get along with most of my teachers. You just have to respect them, and really try to do your work" said Hannah Scott (11).

As the end of the day soon arrives, students can't wait to go home, but if they want to keep Lowell High School a four-star school, they have to work for it. Most nights students relax before they crack open their books for homework. "To me, teachers give out way too much homework, but in the end it really does help you on your tests," says Kayla Miller (10).

"I realized my junior year that school is more than just friends, sports and extra-curricular activities. Academics is the most important thing here because it involves the rest of your life." said Emily Perfetti. (12).

Fall Theatre

More Than a Performance

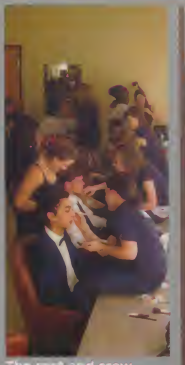

As the seats fill in the auditorium, the audience waits in anticipation to witness a great, comedic performance. Throughout two hours of laughter and tears, there was more to take away from The Curious Savage than the simple joy of entertainment.

Unlike the previous shows, The Curious Savage, taught the audience prominent life lessons. The Curious Savage depicted a group of misfits committed to a sanatorium where they encounter the institution's newest member, Mrs. Ethel Savage. Mallory Swisher (12) played the lead role of Mrs. Savage, and her three Savage step-children were played by Josh Kerwin (12), Jordan Rowe (11), and Amanda Wells (10). "I'm in love with my character because she is different. There are so many ways I could deliver her lines," said Mallory Swisher in regards to her role. Johnny Goodrich (11) and Jessica Sepko (12) played the doctor and his assistant. Mike Kroll (12), Jacob Cook (10), Katie Morario (12), Selena VanBaber (12), and Mikayla Blievernicht (10) played the odd bunch of characters present in the sanatorium. "I love acting fun and crazy. It's great to be myself on stage," said Katie Morario (12) jokingly. The seemingly insane group of sanatorium characters worked together, and treated each other like family, despite their conditions and backgrounds. The play encouraged accepting people for who they are.

Just as Mrs. Savage accepted her friends for whom they were, the theatre program consistently welcomes all types of students with open arms. There were many types of people involved with theatre this year, and despite their different cliques and interests, they treated each other like a family. "Theatre is where I feel most at home. My friends feel like family," said Mike Kroll (12). Even the newest members of the group felt the welcomeness, "I feel so comfortable around everyone," said Taylor Schupp (11).

Through all the Doubts

Hairs stand tall and anticipation swells as the Lowell Marching Red Devils wait on the gr line to take the field for their ISSMA Semi-S performance. The season began with doubts abo the ability to advance, due to the "greenness" of t young marchers. All in all, the doubts were unwarranted due to the hard work and dedicatio of not only the seasoned upperclassmen but also new recruits.

"In June, I thought we were done for," said senior Nick Matthias. With a size of over 100, th band was chock-full of new inexperienced marche The task of molding the raw group into a uniform band was left up to the upperclassmen and experienced staff. Sweating it out through the month of June, many of the upperclassmen had qualms about how far the band would get by the end of the season.

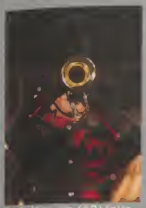

By September, the entire show was well on way to completion. The first competition exemplified how the band was progressing. Even though they only performed the first four parts o their five part show, the results sparked a new outlook on the season. Many changed their focu on the probable success of the show and redeem the hopes to make it back to the semi-state level

Regionals came with the usual pressures and uneasiness, with the band being completely dependent on one performance. Having fallen j short the year before, this time the band was determined not to create a reoccurring pattern. Needless to say, their determination paid off with the band exiting regionals weekend with a place a semi-state. The season came to a relieving and idealistic end, providing the future, a good starting note.

As you may have noticed, at any of the of the half-time shows, the band has taken on a new look. The band was very fortunate in getting an overly-generous donation from one Betty VanDan, alone paying for every uniform. To which the entire band department was extremely thankful for, and were reminded of her generosity every time they heard comments to the ring of,"That's Lowell?!" and "Those are the sickest uniforms ever!" Needless to say the seasons success coupled with the new uniforms set the band up for an amazing future.

Well taught and well practiced the band marches with accurate precision, to bring home a gold at District.

Brand New "Staff"

Beginning a new year of choir is exciting enough, but factoring in a new, ambitious director added a whole new level of anticipation. It did not take long for students to realize that Mrs. Rickaby came equipped with discipline, experience, and fresh creativity.

"We may be devils, but we sing like angels," says Rickaby. The harmonic sounds first echoed the auditorium at the fall concert. The concert was well received and students and parents quickly realized that Mrs. Rickaby was there to do an impressive job. Some of the songs featured in the concert were "Seize the Day", sung by Mixed Choir, "Sister Act Medley", sung by Debutantes, "We Belong", sung by Accents, and "Ride the Chariot" sung by Premiere Distinction.

With an excellent first concert under their belts, the rest of the school year will prove to be successful. "I think it's going to be a great school year; I'm very excited to see what Mrs. Rickaby has in store for us!" said Jeannine Linskens (10).

A Way to Make it Through the Day

At the beginning of the year things are always very chaotic; you have to search for new classes, new teachers are met, old friends reunite , and new friends are usually made. With all of this going on, some might find it hard to fit in extracurriculars. However, students are looking to find their niche in a club that allows them to relax and be themselves. From Dungeons and Dragons to L-Club, there is a club for everyone. Those who were unable to find a club, soon realized that the LHS clubs are anything but stereotypical, and that everyone is friendly and inviting.

The Spanish Club tries to decide on a fun and unique design for this year's shirt.

This year, there were four brand new clubs introduced into the school: the Film Making, Latin, Photography, and Friends of Rachel Clubs. These gave students a new place to channel their extra creativity, increase their capacity for knowledge, or outlet a will to reach out to others. The new and old clubs gave students 18 different opportunities to be involved in a unique group. Some were more popular than others, and some were more involved than others, but all were fun and enjoyable to be a part of.

Though every club is very different from the next they all have the common goal of making lifelong friends and memories.

Things get heated at the weekly Dungeons and Dragons club meetings.

Zachary Wakefield(10) Alexander Bodine(11), and Patricia Weeks(10) are the final three standing in the Latin Club vocabulary quiz.

Academic Teams

We've Got High Hopes

State Competition. That's the one thing on the minds of the academic teams' this fall. The Academic Decathlon Team work's several times a week, in preparation of State Final. The Spell Bowl team has a slightly different story. Unlike the Decath team, who's State Competition isn't until February, qualifications for Spell Bowl are in October. With no time to waste, The Spell Bowl team started the first week of school.

Mr. Gianotti (The Academic Team Leader) had extremely high hopes for this years Spell Bowl team, saying, "This might be the first year we go to state. We've got a real chance." With several talented seniors, many shinning underclassmen, and over 2,000 words: the team hit the books. At their first competition they placed first, having two perfect spellers. With crossed fingers, they entered Sectionals, with hopes of bringing home the first place trophy. Unfortunately, tough words such as 'labyrinthine', stumped the spellers, and they brought home the third place. The turnout was bittersweet. Though they did not advance, they still were a part of one of the best Spell Bowl teams in years.

With Spell Bowl done and over with, it's all on the shoulders of the Decathlon team to bring home the title of State Champions. The team is optimistic. With many bright students, both young and experienced, and a dedicated coach, the outlook is positive. Brielle Geist (12) comments, "I think we have a good chance. As long as we keep up studying, we'll be at Nationals in no time.

Quietly whispering during the competition Coach Joe Gianotti gives Shelbi Hardin (12) and Brielle Geist (12) a pep talk about spelling.

Pondering about the architecture during the time of the great depression, Drew Langen (12) takes a break from studying his packet for Decathlon.

"This year will be different. Not only are we an overall better team, but I'm going to try harder personally. I may even study!"

A Bonding Experience

Many people who have not had a Junior Miss program offered do not understand how much hard work has to go into it. Three hour practices, three days a week, stress caused by performing a talent in front of a large amount of people, and twelve girls all fighting for the title of Lowell's Junior Miss were all essential elements to the competition. However, there were fun elements to help balance all the stress. The girls attended a fashion show held by C'est Moi Salon, they all saw Step Up 3-D and then watched a dance off that happened in the movie theaters parking lot, they were able to ride in fancy convertibles during the Labor Day parade, and they even helped out at the Labor Day fest by running the little kids game section.

In order to win Junior Miss, you need to have the five essential elements for being your best self, have a good interview, be physically fit, have a good talent, have good academics, and have a certain poise to you. The title of Junior Miss went to Alex Damm (12) and the runner-ups, in order, were Brittany Haddon (12), Natalie Johnson (12), and Kelly Kreutz (12). Also, the spirit of Junior Miss award went to Ashley Stanford (12). "The whole Junior Miss experience was the highlight of my senior year, and I wish that I could do it over!" Selena VanBaber (12) had said. The experience as a whole made girls that had never talked before become friends and was it was truly a bonding experience for the group as a whole.

School Spirit Heats Up The Week

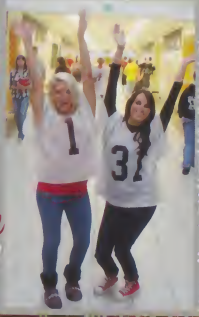

As the doors open and the bell rings, the hallways fill with students that do not look like typical high schoolers. This is no ordinary week of school, this is Spirit Week at LHS. This is the one week out of the school year that students get to show exactly how much pride they have and how much spirit it takes to be a true Red Devil. From black, red, and white all over to the novelty devil horns sported by fans, this is Red Devil Pride at its absolute best. The students were fashionably on fire with the theme "Fall in to the Inferno." "This is the best week out of the year; it is great when we all get to show our pride!" Danni Flatt (11) said. With the days of the week spanning out into pajama day, farmer day, college day, orange day and show your RDP day students never fell short of looking their absolute best for each occasion. "I love the excitement you feel when you walk into a room and everyone is dressed the same but looks different, it shows individuality and spirit at the same time," Sarah Fraikin (11). No Place Like Homecoming

Dresses. Ties. Heels. Bobby pins. Hair gel. "Can you zip me up in the back?" "Will you help with my tie?" Zip. Clip. Tug. Pull. Snap. When asked what her favorite part of getting ready for homecoming was, Tiffanie Marimen (11) replied, "Picking out matching outfits with my date and taking pictures."

When September comes around you know it is time to search for a dress or a tie, get your group together, snap some photos, and finally pile into the car to leave for homecoming. From seven to ten, it is our time to let loose. "My favorite part of the dance was being able to enjoy my last homecoming with all my friends. It was awesome," says Sarah Parker (12). Eventually all that meticulous preparation goes to pieces as heels are left behind, ties come unknotted, and hair is let down. After being asked what her final thoughts about the dance were, Jenna Barker (12) said, "It was a blast!" As time consuming as it is in the beginning to get ready, it is all worth it in the end.

Casual Cool

Leggings, and leggings, and lace, oh my. The fall season was full of many new styles and trends. When regarding different options of pants, a new sensation, jeggings (jeans that are leggings), were spotted as a more comfortable option to regular jeans. Also, instead of leggings just being worn under dresses or skirts, they were also worn as pants usually paired with an oversized tee shirt or tucked into a pair of boots. As far as popular patterns go, lace and floral took over. Everything from dresses to hair accessories accentuated these trends. A popular hairstyle was for brunettes to dye their hair a bronze red color which essentially matched the changing seasons that is brought upon with fall.

A Halloween to Remember

The sun sets as thousands of children across America get ready to dress up and go out to trick or treat. It is everyone's favorite candy collecting holiday...Halloween. It is the only time kids get to dress up in costumes and go out collecting candy from houses. The age-old tradition of Trick 'R Treating is something almost every child looks forward to.

However, trick or treating may not be for everyone. Some of the older kids may enjoy either trying to scare the younger children or going to haunted houses because they themselves enjoy a good scare. A beloved Halloween favorite in Lowell is the Haunted Trail, sponsored by the academic teams. It was a great success, while providing fun and fright for all ages. "I had a lot of fun at the Haunted Trail this year. I almost got scared. I can't wait for next year," Zach Wolfe (11) said. The Haunted Trail provided another option of fun here in Lowell.

Halloween is a great time of the year. Free candy, terrifying costumes, and great haunted houses help make Halloween a favorite in Lowell.

BOYS SWIMMING

Boys Swimming

Early morning and swimmers Ryan Weiser (11) and Tyler VanLieshout (11) start off right by keeping up the lead in their 500m medley relay.

You mad, bro? You mad?

"I think you're mad bro!"
Zack Wakefield (10)

The natatorium calms. Along the risen bleachers, hundreds of spectators from all across the state lean forward eagerly awaiting the starting guns to set the swimmers in motion. The air is thick with anticipation. The swimmers set, taking a last moment to adjust their toes just right on the starting block. The emcee calls "Swimmers ready!" through the megaphone and the starters heads go down, ready. The first event of the 2011 Boys Swimming Sectionals is about to begin... BANG! Like a beautifully choreographed ballet, the swimmers dive into the water in unison. Starting the relay off right for Lowell is Ries Plank (12), captain of the Boys Varsity Swim team with a powerful fly. As Ries completes fifty meters, co-captain Chris Herring (12) takes his place and keeps the pace. The captain and co-captain are followed by outstanding efforts from the remaining team members, lead by two state-qualifying performances by Connor Wood (11): 2:01.76, 3 and 58.90, 2. The boys are did a great job under the stress of a new coach, Ms. Kristin LeClere. "We were a little nervous at first; we weren't sure what to expect because we'd had the same coach for all of our years of swimming here, but LeClere turned out to be just what we needed- maybe not our best friend, but definitely a kick in the right direction." says co-captain Chris Herring (12).

To Swim or Not to Swim? There is No Question.

The girls swim team lives by this everyday. We all know water is a necessity, but for them it's much more than that. It is their passion, it is soul and with every coming meet they strive to be their best and come out on top.

The girls spend countless hours in the pool practicing for upcoming events. Even after a malfunction with the pool the girls did not give up. Traveling to others schools for practice was a big team effort and they gave their all, both mentally and physically.

If you enter the natatorium during a meet, you are exposed to a supportive, unified team. From meeting their fellow teammates at the end of the pool, to screaming and cheering them on with the greatest enthusiasm and constructive criticism on how they can be better, it's just what they do it.

At the flash of a light they are off on their journey, kicking but not screaming with all their might to reach the other side and back again. With every movement served with grace and perfection they glide along the water with ease.

The divers wipe off their feet, ready to jump right in and show off their skills. All of the practicing pays off once they re-surface to the water and turn to see the high scores their hard work has earned them.

After their last meet with Rensselaer, beating them with a score of 103-84, the girls went on to sectionals with Crown Point. This then led to Conference, where the girls gave it their all and won gold. This is no ordinary team, this is a family. Well rounded in age and spirit they came together as one and achieved something greater than any of them could have ever imagined.

High Expectations

The high expectations for the Lowell boys varsity basketball team was a new but refreshing habit that we as a school have not felt in some time. The Red Devils answered the call and ran through the competition in 2010-2011 to finish the season 12-8. The 12-8 record was their first winning season since 1993. It was quite an accomplishment for a school that is not known for its basketball. Led behind Western Michigan bound Austin Richie, the Red Devils came up big when it mattered the most. Their level of intensity could not be matched on any night and it definitely showed in its only game of sectionals. They were down by at least eight the whole game but they kept grinding it out to get within three before eventually losing to the Lake Central Indians. The Red Devils got plenty of help from role players and their deep bench. This year's team proved that basketball in Lowell is not dead, its just waiting for its grand return.

Freshmen Basketball

Movin' On Up

As the freshmen team began their usual warm up, there was more going through their heads than the plays. These boys have a lot to think about. It's no surprise really, when all of them aspire to be starting players on the varsity team as early as next year. "I try to practice everyday just so I can get as good as Austin Richie," said Delmer Fleming (9) an aspiring varsity player. The players aren't the only ones that are thinking about the future. The coaches are also preparing their young freshmen for the years ahead. "We're really stepping it up this year in order to keep up the good seasons. We really want to have more good ones to come, and the best way to do that is to start with these freshmen. These are the boys that will take us higher and higher in recovering our basketball history," says coach Jess Funston. However, enjoying the season and appreciating the experience is also a high priority. Even though the future of the basketball team is on their minds, living in the moment is also a must during this freshmen season. "The best part of freshmen year? Being able to spend everyday after school doing what I love!" said Billy Barker excitedly.

The two teams go one on one.

In The Heat Of The Pit

Can you feel it? Can you hear it? The vibrations rush through the bleachers because the fans are yelling, screaming, and cheering as they wait for their Lady Red Devils to bust out of the locker room doors and cause chaos for yet another opponent. Running up and down the floor lay-ups, free throws and all, these girls know what they want, they want more than the ball. "One of the most important things I've learned is to push yourself to do the best you can, and not worry about what other people think. I play my hardest for my team and myself" said Kalyne Godbolt (10). These girls not only work hard for themselves, but they work hard for each other. With 15 new sisters that you've never had before you get to know them from being with them every day. From the little arguments caused by frustration to the feeling that everyone mutually shares after a good win, these girls are together as one. Our Lady Red Devils never fail to impress even under pressure in the heat of the pit. "Every game is our most important game, and we always try our hardest. We love to win, but sometimes that's not as important as doing the best we could" said Carissa Thiel (12).

Competitive Drive

The girls huddle up during a time out to strategies for the last few minuets of the game.

The JV and freshmen girls basketball teams were spectacular this year. Every time they went out on the court, the Devils competed with heart and intensity. They didn't win games based on individual performances, but they did show how a whole team working together can pull of the victory. However, a star did shine brighter then the rest. "Amy Fraikin (9) was probably our best player. She was apart of every play whethe it was drawn up that way or not," Mackenzie Connors (9) said. When the team got disoriented and confused during the heat of the games, Fraikin would pull the girls together. "She pushed us t try harder during the game." Connors said again. Due to low amounts of people trying out, the freshmen and JV teams combined and formed a nucleus of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors. With the chemistry they formed on the sidelines, the De pushed through the regular season in competitive fashion.

"One of our strengths is camaraderie," said Coach Willmann, "They all know they have a responsibility to the team and to themselves." Whether it was long discussions at tiring practices, or bus rides home, the boys got along very well. "We are all close and push each other to achieve excellence." Josh Bottos (9) said. The Magnificent Six

They say all great things come in small packages. For this years gymnastics team, this statement is very true. With a team consisting of only six girls, they worked through the rough patches and stuck together throughout the season. "With such a small team we get more one on one time with the coaches, and are a lot closer as a team," Ashley Ulanowski (11) said. As one of the older girls on the team Brittney Ulanowski (11) said, "By being one of the oldest, we have more roles on leading the team and preparing everyone else for meets." Practices are a vital part of gymnastics, but competing at the meets is where all that practice pays off. "My favorite part about competing is showing off our skills, and how unique our rituals are," Brittany Clemens (10) admitted. Before the season started Kara Manojlovich (10) said, "I'm most looking forward to seeing what I will improve most on." Vickie Nichols (10) said, "I'm looking forward to competing all around and watching the girls do their best." Overall, the team did their best and received scores they could all be proud of. JV CHEERLEADING

JV Cheerleading

Eat. Sleep Cheer.

Pom Poms. Bows. Skirts. These are some of the cliche words associated with cheerleaders, but most people don't realize how it's much more than that. Many people ignore the fact that cheerleading takes physical strength and endurance, especially when it comes to stunts and competitions. Not to mention the hours upon hours to memorize all the cheers and routines, which can become exhausting. All of this hard work has its benefits though. "I love watching basketball," Jessica Miller (12) says, "and cheerleading is a great way to get involved in the game. You're right there on the floor with them; you can feel the intensity."

This year there were a few new additions to the program. Not only did they gain Diablo the mascot, but they also had throw-back night that consisted of teased hair, old uniforms and bringing back old-school cheers. "The flashback game was probably my favorite of the year," Brigitte Dewes (12) said, "it was hilarious seeing everyone's ridiculous hair and make-up!"

DANCE TEAM

Dance Team

Dancing is a sport

The crowd comes to a hush, anticipation fills the air, you look out to the center of the floor and what do you see? The dance team about to take center stage and perform their well practiced routine. The dance team consists of nineteen hard working girls who eat, breathe, sleep, and think one thing: dance. These girls mean business and they came to find that with concentration and dreams you can achieve what you aim for. That is exactly what they did this past year, and they made it to state.

While they take their dancing seriously, they also know how to have fun. When asking the girls what their favorite memory of the year was, Kelvina Chapman (11) says her favorite memory was, "Our sleepovers and dance parties." The team does their best to include everyone in activities even outside of school and practice. When it is weather permitting they have campfires and other team bonding experiences. Megan DenHartog (11) refers to her team as, "A little family."

Although their music at pep rallies never seems to play quite right, the girls don't easily get discouraged. They stay on their toes and are ready to respond to any situation that may come up. They are without a doubt a very diverse and unique team and they show it in the way they perform. The dance team has pride in what they do. Just ask 'em, they'll tell you.

They may be pretty, but they're fierce.

"Dancing is like dreaming with your feet."

Captain Ashley Stanford says:

What will I remember from my years at Lowell High School? Not the petty drama, the boyfriends, or the pre-cal test I barely passed. What I'm going to remember is the way it felt to be under the lights on a cool Friday night, performing at halftime at a football game. I'm going to remember being oh so gracefully, and purposefully, "placed" on my head during the Homecoming Pep Rally. I'm going to remember all the laughs and tears. Mostly, I'm going to remember how much I adore the dance team and every single person involved in it and I hope that the Devilins share the same amazing memories with me. A special thank you to our Head Coach Lisa Stanford, Assistant Coach Sandy Van Drunnen, and Choreographer David Mollema. Without you amazing people none of this would be possible. Also, Thank you LHS for these years filled with memories and love. I will never forget you.

High School isn't just about academics. It's about getting ready for your future while having fun with it and making memories along the way. And what's a great way to make memories here at LHS you may ask? You could always join one of our clubs.

There is a very large variety of clubs to join here at LHS, ones such as Guitar club, Environmental club, French club, and new ones such as Improv club. Each one of these clubs though has a special aspect of it that can benefit the students. "Environmental club gave me a new outlook on life," Taylor Augustson (12) exclaimed, "it has made me cherish the earth that we live on more, and it makes me happy to think that the trees are proud of Lowell High School for saving the environment."

Overall, the clubs at our high school can be vital to our students. It gives them something fun to do in high school but the clubs also teach responsibility and new things that can help the students in their lives after high school. "Guitar Club has furthered my learning and has furthered my musical skills, and I will miss it," Eric Stanford (12) said.

Selective Electives

During the winter academics seem to slow down then pick up as we busy ourselves with projects and finals. We are given these chances to prove what we have learned. Some of these classes are more stressful than others. Some enrich our minds with experience's we will never forget.

Anna Dainton (12) works on a project in ceramics

This year was the first year that A.P. Psychology was offered at LHS. They made their own "Brain Museum" where they showed their knowledge of the different parts of the brain. When we asked Ms. Kalvaitis about the class she said, "A.P. Psychology helps you understand your own mind."

The art classes offered here at LHS are some of those experiences many students will never forget. Art is a subject where you can make something and keep it forever like in painting or ceramics. Shelbi Hardin (12) said, "Thanks to Ceramics I decorated my house with my ceramic pieces." Another class which many students consider nap time is Student Resource Time. Many students take the opportunity of SRT to get help with their homework, work on projects, make up tests, and help others. So as you think about all those finals that you have to study for, the projects you have to color, and the papers you have to write just remember all that you've learned. The things you get to keep and most importantly the experiences you will never forget.

MENTORING

Mentoring

Devils Give Back

All of the Mentors who went on the Summer trip pose for a picture in from of DePauw's student center.

When you sign up to be in the Mentoring Program you sign up to simply take a class. You don't commit to out-of-class tutoring, or extra circular activities/involvement or anything more than simply sitting in a specific room for 90 minutes. This year the mentors took that minimum requirement and stomped on it as they all went above and beyond involving them selves in a high amount of extra circular volunteer work. More than half of the mentors this year participated in tutoring during their SRT, simply for the joy of helping others. Some even went so far as to come in early on Wednesday mornings. Everything from spending lunch hours asking students for donations for local house-fire victims, to volunteering to help out with out-of-school assemblies were being done by these dedicated kids. By the end of the year the tutors helped students with homework for an estimated 12,000+ minutes. But no amount of time can measure the fullness one feels after helping out someone , especially for free. "When I signed up to become a Mentor, I didn't really know what I was getting myself into. It turned out to be something that was bigger than all of us," said Ashley Stanford (12).

Inside you will find students smiling and laughing together, it makes it hard to believe that there is learning going on but there is. The students in the Special Ed class learn basic living skills such as: how to grocery shop, write checks, and every day math skills. The life skills are not only taught inside the classroom though. The students take field trips to places such as restaurants, and various stores where they can experience using their money hands on. It is not always serious business however. Once or twice a year, students from schools around the area come together and make new friends, while dancing the night away like it is 1999. The personalities of these students are like no one you have ever met. They are caring and considerate. They do as much as they possibly can to make sure that everyone is included in their classroom activities and field trips. The friendships they have formed will be life-long and will follow them throughout their lives. If you need a best friend, visit the Special Ed room.

Jazz BAND

The Jazz Band is a extracurricular group with in the Band Department that rehearses and preforms for the better part of the year, stretching across late Fall into early spring. And within this immense time the band is able to learn and practice a wide arrange of musical genres, that they wouldn't normally be exposed to in the normal classroom setting.

Along with their regular performances through out the year the Jazz Band also participates in the ISSMA Jazz Ensemble Contest. Although a typical Jazz Ensemble is only a few members strong, the Jazz Band was closer to 30 members strong! With such a large group the Band had to enter ISSMA as a Stage Band, instead of their usual category of Large Ensemble. In-spite of the switch the Band still was able to capture a gold rating, and put the Band Department one step closer to their goal of the All Music Award.

ISSMA Solo & Ensemble

The band program is a large commitment, with the verity of different programs within the band, there is always something during any part of the year. On top of getting ready for the concert season and all the extracurricular programs, during the winter, students take the extra step by preparing a solo or working with an ensemble for ISSMA's Solo & Ensemble competition, to be judged on playing ability on a much more personal level.

Year after year the band supports a large number of students that take on the challenge of performing at the district level, and the amount of success is something to take pride in. But even more so is the amount of pride in the fact that 60 students made it to the next level and competed at State. Continuing the success with the Brass Choir bringing home a Silver, the Clarinet Choir raking in a Gold, and a Saxophone Quartet grabbing a Gold and a near perfect score! Along with all the soloist having great performances, the band was one step closer to the coveted All Music Award.

WINTER CHOIR

Winter Choir

Mixed choir sings beautifully at their winter concert

You're a Mean One, Mr. Grinch

On Sunday 12th in January, two things happened: The biggest blizzard of the year swept through Lowell and the four choirs of LHS blew everyone away with a fantastic concert. In the Holiday Sounds Concert, the different choirs really proved their saying "We may be devils, but we sing like angels." Not only were their songs beautiful, but they also added in a bit of a sing-along for the crowd with fun, well known, holiday-time songs. By the end of the concert, the friends and family that came to watch all had a bit of the holiday spirit, and Mrs. Rickaby seemed very pleased.

It's Art for Art's Sake

Most would think that art class would be the same year after year, the same assignments, the same teachers, it must be boring, right? Wrong. Each year, a new set of students always manages to come up with something unique and new, expressing the assignments in their own way. And even though Mr. Sufana and Mrs. Thomas have busy schedules, being the only two art teachers, they still find the energy to be cheerful and helpful to their students. Art class is far from boring, whether you're taking Intro to 2D Art or Painting. Each teacher has their own sense of humor and their own way of seeing the world. Mix that teacher with students and you get something amazing, such as an office filled with paintings and sculptures. If you have eyes and you look around the school, it's not hard to see that art in itself is a beautiful thing, and that we have some truly talented people in our building.

For this year's winter formal, chaotic is the only way to describe it. The dance was canceled from November until February, and then when the week of the dance rolled around, it got canceled due to the severe blizzard we had, and then got put back on for the initial date. The chaos however doesn't stop there, two days before the dance, the DJ and karaoke technician canceled, so a new DJ had to be found quickly! However, minus all the difficulties, the dance was an overall great time for all the students. "It was so much fun being able to have our whole group of friends get together and just dance the night away!" Austin Richie (12) said. DODGEBALL

Dodgeball

If You Can Dodge Homework, You Can Dodge a Ball

Mr. Wong puts his game face on.

Saturday, March 19, what would have been a typical boring night in Lowell, was a night of excitement in the Red Devil Pit. As the 36 Dodgeball VII teams prepared for battle, the fans poured into the bleachers. Suddenly the gym grew quiet as the teams were announced and walked through the locker room doors in their elaborate costumes. When asked who he thought had the best uniforms, Nick Woroszylo (12) replied "WWF Superstars definitely had the best." Teams such as Target Practice, Fluorescent Sombreros, Revenge of the Nerds, Channel 4 News, Abusement Park, and Team Tiny made their way to the gym floor. The first teams to play made it to their sides of the court, prepared to give everything they had at the sound of a whistle. As the night went on, some teams took the long walk back to the locker room after losing and others went on to play towards victory. "Obviously the part where people threw balls at each other," said Shannon Amazzalorso (10) when asked what her favorite part was. The sound of Josh Henshilwood singing to the fans filled the gymnasium with laughter. The suspense was growing. Finally, the last two teams, Whatever You Want and Revenge of the Nerds, were facing each other for the championship. The last ball was thrown, Whatever You Want wins! The crowd cheered as they received their trophies. After being asked if they plan on going next year Tyler Logsdon (11) replied ", Of course! I wouldn't miss it." JROTC is more than a class; you learn about the Military at the same time. Starting from book work to physical training, its a class you should defiantly be dedicated too. "I like how we are like a big family," says Rachel Elliot (11).

ROTC exemplifies their motto of "One Big Family."

Community service is a big part of the program. The cadets have done over a thousand hours combined. Some of these projects that tied together the many hours of service include: color guards, parades, picking up trash, food pantry, food drives, helping the Headstart Program, donating over 500 dollars to disabled veterans and also helping out with the Special Ed Program.

For the first time in 21 years, there is a Drill Team. The cadets on the team plan on keeping it running for years to come, and have earned it by how great they have performed. Each and every cadet showed their pride for not only the Air Force, but the Military, for they have worn their uniforms proudly each and every week; which include uniform days, color guards and drill team performances.

A new edition to this –Major Eller is "Respected," Quincey Corning (9), in this program. Everyone has welcomed him with open arms into this, "Serious program," Alexander Heninger (11) said. Major just retired from the Air Force this year, and is seemingly highly respected in this program, just within his first year. "He is a nice guy and he is learning," Alexander Turner (11) quoted. Every new teacher needs a boost, and in this class, respect is high, so teaching shouldn't be an issue for this new highly educated Major.

Individuality at its Best

Often times it seems as if people are somewhat nervous or afraid when it comes to fashion. However, fashion is simply a way of expressing yourself and is something that should be embraced no matter what your style is. Fashion adds uniqueness to anyone and truly defines what it means to be an individual.

This winter, the students at Lowell High School didn't seem to have a problem displaying the current fashion trends of the season. Girls seemed to transition from fall to winter by wearing trendy boots and using leggings under skirts to keep warm. To pull the look together, scarves were amongst the most popular accessories seen around the necks of many girls. For boys, plaid shirts seemed to be the most popular trend, finished off with a pair of casual shoes or moccasins. Girls and boys alike seemed to favor cardigan sweaters, which are always a nice touch to any outfit.

Overall, the trends of this season were not only chic and sophisticated, but also comfortable, which is unarguably the perfect combination during the long winter months. The students at LHS definitely offer reassurance to others that it's okay to embrace these trends and to accept individuality.

Maddie Zaherdar (9) and Stephanie DeSimini (11) know how to look good while staying warm.

WINTER BREAK

Time to relax!

Winter break is the time for snow, drinking hot chocolate, spending time with friends, family, and snuggling with a snuggie. Going to ugly Christmas sweater and New Year's Eve parties are just other activities students like participating in. "I chilled with family and enjoyed being out of school," responded Guillermo Barrientes when asked what he did over break.

Another big part of winter break is baking cookies. Spending time in the kitchen making holiday treats while listening to some Christmas music is one of Katie Cavanaugh's festive ways of having a blast during the holidays. "I baked snickerdoodle cookies and some gingerbread people", explained Katie. It seems like these students had a great vacation. Nothing beats the relaxing fun filled events of good ole winter break.

The Boys Are Back In Town

The boys are all lined up at the starting point, when the gun fires. They immediately set off with only one thing on their mind: to create a new personal record. Varsity runner, Brandon Bullitt (11) said, "My favorite part about track is the competition on meet day." If you asked the team what they like most about being in track, most would probably agree that its the people. "I like cheering on my team and helping my teammates get through their different events," said Anthony Miranda (12). When one teammate is running, whether it is a meet or practice, the whole team is standing there cheering them on. "I love the conversations we have before and after practice," Nick Hamm (10) admitted. Throughout the season, the boys have truly bonded and became a very close team. Jay Trappani (12) said, "My favorite part about track would definitely have to be the cookout we have once a year." The boys track team, consisting of over fifty runners, have done so much more than just bonded as a team, they have created several new personal records, and even some school records. The season the boys have spent together will be one they won't forget.

Bishop Noll, the opponent, is beginning to look intimidated as the Lowell Red Devils begin their pre-game chants and motivational outbursts.

The Red Devils went on that day to win against Bishop Noll at Railcats Stadium. "It was probably one of my favorite victories. One of my favorite games all together to be playing in that stadium," says senior Nick Schaaf (12).

"It was a pretty tough season," says manager Haley Slavis (11), "but the guys always knew how to get each others' heads back in the game every time. When one player would seem to be losing some motivation or energy, the other members would do their best to get them going again. They all have good sportsmanship, so more often than not, that'd help in competition as well. Geo and Wong are both great coaches, so there was a good deal of improvement as well."

Young Power

When asked to describe the Freshmen team, you may find yourself using the words 'powerful', 'young', and 'victorious', but never naive. This team may be young, but they certainly know how to push through practices and games to become a successful Red Devil team. "Winning is important, but I worry more about improving our skills" says Grant Weinmann (9). After finishing the year with a (STAT) average, this freshmen team has something to be proud of. As this season came to a close the boys now look forward to another year of victory. "I learned a lot this season, and I can't wait to play again next year" said freshman player Zack Kinn (9). This team has improved their baseball skills and proved to their fans that they may be young, but they certainly know how to play the game. "My favorite part is giving it our best effort and taking down a rival team" said freshman player Dan Garza (9).

VARSITY SOFTBALL

A Clean Slate

This year was an interesting year for the varsity softball team, to say the least. After losing a whopping ten seniors and re-vamping their whole coaching staff, it was definitely a year full of change. After a rocky start to their season the team bounced back, embraced the change, and ended their season with a 10-21 record.

This year's team consisted of merely one senior, and multiple freshmen. With such a young team with such little experience, the team got better and better as the season progressed and the players grew more accustomed to the varsity team atmosphere. The team made it past the first round of sectionals, defeating Hammond, but then went on to lose to Highland in a hard fought extra-inning game with a final score of 9-8. The determination and persistence showed in this last game and throughout the season proved how much passion and heart this young group of girls had.

Drive. Spirit. Devotion. These are only some of the many words that describe the Red Devil JV Softball team. The girls quickly came together, and showed their passion for the game. With such a young team, it became easy for them to connect and get along with each other. "I like that I can relate to my teammates easier." Mackenzie Connors (9) said. Each and every girl was excited to play on the team, especially since they had all played together since they were at least five years old. The young team knew that the season would have its challenges, but they stuck together and worked it out. Ending their season with a 18 and 9 record. All and all the teammates and new coaches came together and got the job done, proving that a young team can accomplish big things.

Straight Business

While tennis players compete separately on the courts, they always play as a team. The incredible support that these ladies exemplified for each other throughout their season revealed them to be not only a successful team, but also a family. "This year our team was much closer than any seasons in the past," explained senior, Natalie Johnson (12). The camaraderie among the girls created an encouraging and positive atmosphere that over flowed with accomplishments.

The girls experienced a dominating season with only three losses to Munster, Goshen, and Highland. After the Highland match the girls reached their high point in the season with a winning match against Crown Point. The defeat of their rival team, their teamwork and competitive spirits caused the Lady Red Devils to have the best season they have had in years. Chloe White (11) remained undefeated the entire season, taking down everyone of her opponents. Natalie Johnson (12) won her sectional match and advanced to regionals. As the matches went on the team grew stronger leaving the team with high hopes for next season.

The seniors filled the top spots with Natalie Johnson (12) as number one singles, Danielle Savich (12) as number two singles, Amber DeYoung (12) and Mallory Swisher (12) as the dominating number one doubles team, and Kelly Jasinski (12) as number one singles JV. "I'm going to miss the seniors so much." said Lauren Munster (11). With the seniors leaving the group, the other girls definitely have big shoes to fill.

BOYS GOLF

Boys Golf

Hole in one... Like a Boss.

Nick Gesiakowski (10) has excellent form as he practices his swing.

Picture this: The sun is beating on your back, everything around you is silent besides for the leaves blowing in the trees, you squint and you zone in on your goal, swing back, give your ball a tough love tap, and watch it fly. Sounds intense, huh? Well, believe it or not, that intensity is what the boys golf team lives for. They may be small, but they're one of the most determined, successful teams this school has.

Finishing their final match hosted by Hammond, the boys did not finish out their strongest. However, that did not keep them down. When they drove home that evening, the boys didn't wonder to themselves, "Why can't I be better?", they wondered, "What am I going to do next time, next season to improve myself?" This shows not only integrity but also wonderful sportsmanship.

The boys are very close knit. They make sure to help each other out when needed. If a teammate is having a rough day, the boys do the best they can to keep their friends chin up. None of the boys ever feel left out, or upset about the relationships in their team.

So men and women of LHS, when you think of the boys golf team... don't think they're a small splinter. Get it drilled into your minds that this team, is nothing but business and great achievements. In fact, take your hands out of your pockets, and give them the polite little golfers clap.

You can't play without your clubs.

Just a Spoon Full of Sugar

As school is coming to a close it becomes time for finals. Students are using every spare second to cram for the big test that could change their grade for good or bad. Among all the frantic studying, the students need a little time to de-stress and take time for themselves. Some hang out with friends, but others look forward to the clubs they're involved in after school.

It's the end of the year but that doesn't mean that the clubs are slacking off and having end of the year parties all the time. Instead, most of them are still working just as hard as they were at the beginning of the year. The recycling team still works hard to get all of the bins out before four o'clock, French club still makes every meeting an effort to learn about French culture, and the Student Councils still come up with new and unique ideas for charities.

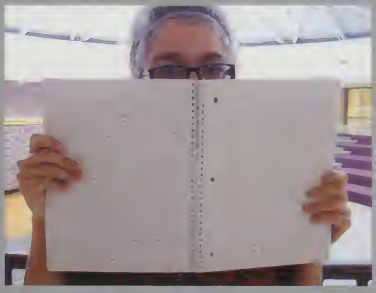

Just because the school year is nearly over doesn't mean that new clubs can't still spring up. For instance, Mr. Charpentier and a few students who are passionate about writing recently created a Creative Writing club to bring back the real meaning of the old class that was cut last year. They may not have a great deal of time to get anything big started, but they do have a promise of coming back next year and to write something fantastic over the summer.

State Bound

Many people underestimate all the effort that goes into competing on an Academic Superbowl team. It takes hours of practice and even more hours of studying outside of practice. Participants may choose to be a part of any or all of the 6 teams: Fine Arts, English, Social Studies, Math, Science, plus an Interdisciplinary category in which questions from all subjects are asked. Each year the teams get together and put in hours of work learning all they can about the years topic. This year it was Latin America. Fine Arts kids learned about the mural movement and the three main artists involved in that. They also studied Latin American music such as Samba and Tango. The English team spent countless nights buried into their novel, In the Time of the Butterflies by Julia Alvarez, and a variety of poems they were required to know. The Social studies team focused on events that occurred from 1700-1990. This time period consisted of many wars and struggles toward independence. The math team was thrown a curve ball this year when they learned they had to study the Mayan calendar, which consists of no real numbers, just symbols. They also learned about different aspects of Calculus, Geometry and Algebra. As for the Science team, they dove into the wonderful world of volcanoes, and the effects of weather.

After hours of studying the teams were faced with their first competition, The Munster Invite and soon after The River Forest Invite. Both of these competitions were for practice in order to prepare the participants for the Regional competition. The regional is what it all comes down to. If a team ranks high at the regional they get to move on to state. All the teams put their knowledge to the test and the Fine Arts team proved they knew it all! Placing third at the regional they got to advance to state where they also placed third.

As the year comes to a close the student body and the teachers get anxious about the summer. The taste of the hot weather makes us all scream on the inside and the thought of being stuck behind the walls of the school seems a little nerve-wracking. Students feel that being here is pointless and that they can't learn anymore then they already have. But does that stop the Lowell Red Devils? No, we work even harder and have more fun.

When Spring hits, the activity's in the classroom get to be more interesting, dressing up and having fun is just a way of life to us. The nice weather we have in Lowell, Indiana in the spring time livens up the students and the teaching in the classroom. Once Upon a Prom

It was April 30, 2011 and the second biggest moment of the Lowell seniors' high school career had finally come. Girls rushed to get their hair and nails ready at the last minute as the men learned how to put on their ties and bought their dates flowers. Prom 2011 had finally come and Lowell was alive with energy as friends and family helped students look perfect for their pictures. After taking more than enough pictures, the students climbed into their shiny limousines and were off to the hall. As seniors and juniors enjoyed their delicious dinner and long awaited ice cream, they shared many laughs. Once the music started, every one had a great time and past differences didn't matter on the dance floor. When asked her favorite part of prom, Senior Lori Cooper answered, "Dancing with Jordan Rowe, sweating, and winning Prom Queen...Oh wait". As the students danced the night away under the light of the elegant chandeliers, it all truly seemed like a real life fairy tale.

A Walk Through the Hallways

Fashionable? This year, it seems like the newest trends are actually the old styles coming back! Flashbacks from the 70's seems to be becoming increasingly popular in Lowell High School. From the hefty dose of the 70's to bold colors and pajamas, a change is certainly in sight.

These days, everyone seems to be interested in the new Egyptian style sandals or flip-flops, a certain change to the trend of UGG boots last season. Often paired with a pair of brightly colored shorts and a t-shirt, this trend is on the rise. Another fashion attributed with spring, is bright colors and layering, and of course, accessories. Leggings paired with a simple mini-dress or long t-shirt are seen throughout the hallways. This simple, yet exquisite style shows fun, yet keeps it professional. For guys, a simple plaid t-shirt and jeans seems to be popular. Whether its buttoned up, or unbuttoned with a t-shirt underneath, both ways looks rather charming.

What are the best colors for spring? Most of the time, colors associated with spring are generally very bright and cheery colors, such as: bright yellow, light orange, lavender, aquamarine, a softer red or black color, or even a light gray. Some colors and outfits work well together, but don't mix certain items. "Sandals and socks are illegal in my mind," Kailey Weller (10) stated. One common mix of clothing that people often dislike, is the pairing of boots, a pair of shorts, and a long- sleeved shirt. Although quite common, its not the most popular.

All in all, every fashion is unique; the simple change of one piece of clothing or accessory on an outfit can start a new fashion frenzy in any high school. Go with the flow and blend in, or be unique in your own way are the only options here. Which would you rather be? "Everyone is unique, so everyone blends in," says Joslynn Kowalewski (12). There is no right or wrong in fashion, only new discoveries to be made, and new trends to make. Through the halls of Lowell High School, everyday there is a new fashion to be seen.

SPRING THEATRE

Spring Theatre

The cast and crew take their bows on the last night of the show.

The Final Bow

When the curtain went down on closing night, tears came out. It's always hard to end a show. You grow so close to the rest of the cast and crew, and months of hard work finally comes to an end. And to make this show closing that much harder, it wasn't just the last production of the year; it was the last production for the large group of seniors.

"I am both sad and happy that the seniors are leaving, because they are moving on in life but I will be in the same position as them next year." says Eain Goldsmith (11) when asked about the seniors departure. The seniors have played a huge role in the theatre department. They account for a vast majority of both the cast and crew. Several of them have been a part of every production since freshmen year. All of them have been such an inspiration to everyone who's been a part of the productions this year and the past 4.

It's a shame that the seniors have to part, but they will be missed. They have been a great group of people to look up to. Their experiences, and words of advice have been past down to the next groups, because of them they have left the theatre department in good hands.

A Successful Spring

This spring, the choir had quite a productive season. Whether it was taking their field trip to Chicago to see the production "Million Dollar Quartet", getting ready for their Michael Jackson themed showcase, or preparing to say "goodbye" to the seniors, it seemed like everyone kept busy.

Maddie Pyke (11) said, "Getting prepared for showcase took a lot of time and effort but in the end, I had a lot of fun performing some of Michael Jackson's most famous tunes." Maddie, as well as the entire choir, worked very hard this spring. Many hours of practice and hard work went into making this spring a successful one.

Sadly, many seniors will be graduating this year and will therefore, have to end their long lasting choir career. One of the best choir members to come through Lowell High School, Selena VanBaber, is one of them. VanBaber (12) said, "I want to thank everyone for making my high school years of choir so memorable. It's been a great four years and I know I'll miss everyone...well, almost everyone."

Overall, the choir proved that with a little determination and effort, good things can come together very smoothly. Although it took a lot of devotion, everything seemed to pay off in the end.

A Step Above

The final hurdle in the way of the band receiving the All Music Award was a gold rating for their concert band. On top of that, the band made the decision to have the Wind Ensemble step up and take on State Qualifications. So there was a huge pressure put on the younger Concert Band, because of the uncertainty facing the Wind Ensemble at State Qualifications.

The Concert Band was pushed on to a new level to ensure a strong performance at their ISSMA Contest, not only on the music that they had been preparing for the Contest, but also on the bands ability to sight read. After many hours of work and dedication it was the morning of their performance, and anticipation was high. But the Concert Band was able to push past the many distractions and come out with a gold rating!

With the Concert Band having already achieved a gold, the Wind Ensemble was relieved of the pressure of having to get a gold rating for the All Music Award. But in no way did they relax in their goals to get a gold. This paid off, because at State Qualifications they received four out of four golds! Unfortunately it wasn't a high enough score to push them to the State level, but none the less it was an amazing feat for the Lowell Bands.

Starting the night off with a bang are the singers: Abby Davis (9), Trevor Serbin (12), Jess Sepko (12), Johnny Goodrich (11), Amanda Wells (10), Jacob Cook (10), and Hailey Langmeyer (9). They wrapped the audience around their fingers with pleasing songs. Next were the duets. Up first was Josh Kerwin (12) with Cambria Wynsma (10); next were Blake Williams (10) and Jeannine Linskens (10). The crowd went wild as Breanna Greer (11) belted out "Jar of Hearts" with Ryan Post (11) on piano. Finishing up the duets were Maddie Pyke (11) and Selena VanBaber (12) with the acoustic version of "Pokerface." From ballet to hip hop the dancers, Shelby Downen (10), Sam Caudle (11) and Kayla Sheets (10), pleased the crowd. As the night came to an end, we had two more acts for the miscellaneous category. Nathan Raby (12) showed us what he is made of with his saxophone solo. Then, Nathan Muha (9) and Michael Hilt (9) played with their band, finishing off the night. All and all the performers proved that Lowell truly has talent.

Tears, Love, & Graduation

As the seniors sit patiently to receive their diplomas and move on with their lives, they got a little teary eyed and emotional. The graduates look to their left and right and in that moment, and realize that they won't see that person again for another ten years.

There was a sense of love at this year's graduation ceremony at The Star Plaza Theatre in Merrillville, IN. As some of the graduates received their diplomas that worked so very hard for, they'd hug Dr. Neal, Mr. Richie, and Mr. Ingram. The love carried out through the audience, as well. There was nothing but cheering coming from the numerous family members and friends.

Even though the seniors are excited to graduate and start the next chapter in their lives, they've come this far as The Class of 2011. They have gone through a lot, which in the end has only made them the strongest class of Lowell Senior High School. So, best of luck in whatever and wherever your little heart and feet take you. We're the ones!

Deidre,

You have always been my little miracle baby, and I have held your hand every step of the way. When you started school the teacher told me "Mom, you have to let go of her hand." I would say "No not yet, I can't!!" Even when you started taking the bus, the bus driver would tell me "Mom, you have to let go of her hand." I would say "No, I can't, not yet!" Well you have grown into a beautiful young lady. I was always concerned that you would follow the crowd but you didn't. You paved your own travel. Just the other day at Purdue the advisor told me that I had to let go of your hand and I said "Yes, I can, and I will."

IN RECOVERY
As the economy showed signs of recovery from the worst recession most Americans had ever known, President Barack Obama's satisfaction ratings also became more positive.

NEW HOMEOWNERS REJOICE Families buying homes received tax credits of up to $8,000 when Congress passed a bill intended to revitalize a struggling housing market. The new homebuyer deadline was later extended to serve those buyers whose closings were delayed due to the number of loans being processed. WAR IS OVER In late August, President Obama announced that Operation Iraqi Freedom had officially ended. While the last combat brigade had already vacated, some U.S. troops remained in Iraq through year's end to help train Iraq's new Iraqi military forces.

HEALTH-CARE REFORM The Affordable Care Act was signed into effect in March, 2010, with the hope of enhancing accessibility and quality of health care for all Americans. Passage of a controversial reform continued for months. PAYROLL TAX CUT Aimed at stimulating the economy by increasing take-home pay, these cuts saved workers earning $50,000 an estimated $1,000. Some opponents worried about the decrease the cuts would cause in Social Security funding.

TEENS REPORTED BEING BULLIED

CYBER-BULLYING
Bullies don't always happen at school or even in person. Some of the most vicious attacks happened over the internet on social networking sites or via instant messages. Many worried that internet bullying was becoming more prominent because of the relative anonymity afforded by phantom screen names.

A REAL ISSUE: BULLYING

Though bullies had been feared in schools and neighborhoods for centuries, the changing landscape of peer teasing and torture took several visible turns in recent years.

In the past, intimidation and verbal or physical abuse may have been most common forms of bullying. Another form of bullying, social alienation, became more powerful as a result of cyber bullying, where a victim's reputation may have been destroyed via emails, blogs, forum posts or text messages.

After what seemed to be an increase in teen and tween suicides due to bullying, many schools, communities and other organizations moved to provide programs and information for affected students and their parents/teachers.

ITGETSBETTER.ORG
This movement, spanning nearly 10,000 user-created videos and more than 30 million views, was started in 2010 by author Dan Savage. Among the celebrities, politicians and businesses submitting videos were President Obama, Hillary Clinton and employees of both Facebook and Google. It was a place where people could share their stories, take the It Gets Better Project pledge and watch videos of love and support.

NATIONAL SUICIDE PREVENTION LIFELINE
By calling 1-800-273-TALK, anyone feeling the extreme effects of bullying could get the support they might need from trained volunteers who were ready to help.

CARTOON NETWORK'S "STOP BULLYING, SPEAK UP" CAMPAIGN
Kid-centric television channels such as Cartoon Network stepped up to the plate in the fight against bullying. They launched their own campaign to encourage kids to speak up and to ultimately get their schools involved in anti-bullying programs.

THE TREVOR PROJECT AND LIFELINE
The Trevor Project was established to end suicide among young people by providing life-saving and life-affirming resources including a nationwide, 24/7 crisis intervention lifeline (1-866-4-U-TREVOR), digital community and advocacy/educational programs that created a safe, supportive and positive environment for everyone.

VIDEO PROOF

After five months underground, rescuers pull Mario Sepúlveda from a narrow escape shaft. Sepúlveda was the 31st miner to emerge from the 2,300-foot (700-meter) mine.

BOUNCING BACK

Arizona congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords made record strides in her recovery after a gunshot wound to the head during a Tucson shooting in January that killed six others. Giffords was critically injured, but surpassed expectations in the months following the shooting.

JOINING FORCES

When Britain's 2010 election ended in a hung Parliament, the two winning rival Prime Minister candidates (David Cameron, a Conservative, and Nick Clegg, a Liberal Democrat) agreed to join forces and form a coalition government, the U.K.'s first in more than 30 years.

FLAWLESS RESCUE

Televised efforts allowed the world to look on as Chilean miners trapped underground for nearly 10 weeks by a mining accident returned to safety in October. It took just 22 hours and 37 minutes for all 33 miners to travel nearly half a mile to the surface.

EGYPTIAN OVERTHROW

President Hosni Mubarak's 30-year reign over Egypt ended in February when huge protests encouraged him to step down.

A ROYAL ENGAGEMENT

Prince William and his long-time girlfriend, Kate Middleton, scheduled an April 29 wedding after a much-discussed engagement.

LOSS OF POLISH PRESIDENT

Lech Kaczynski, his wife and 94 others died in April 2010 when their plane crashed in Russia. Thick fog was cited as the accident's cause.

WIKILEAKS SAGA

A team headed by Australian Julian Assange, a self-proclaimed opponent of secrecy, founded the international non-profit site that published classified news leaks, and named Readers' Choice for TIME's 2010 Person of the Year.

SUPREME COURT

Elena Kagan, formerly the Dean of Harvard Law, was sworn in as the Court's newest Justice in August. She replaced 90-year-old Justice John Paul Stevens.

MOSQUE UNREST

Mike Bloomberg of plans to build a Muslim community center within blocks of Ground Zero provokes protesters crowded the streets.

NEW SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE

Nancy Pelosi handed the symbolic gavel to Republican John Boehner, the newly elected Speaker of the House in January.

VOLCANIC ASH
European air travel was severely disrupted when Eyjafjallajökull, an Icelandic volcano, erupted through the summer months producing a dense, enormous ash cloud.

EGG RECALL
Nearly half a billion eggs were recalled from nearly 20 states after a salmonella outbreak sickened thousands. All of the eggs came from a single egg-producing company in Iowa.

SNOWPOCALYPSE
Winter yielded record snow levels. Many areas of the country saw multiple school delays and closings due to snow. On Jan. 12, 2011, 49 of the 50 states reported snow on the ground.

IN LIVING COLOR
Scientists revealed the discovery of the biological structure that gives feathers their color in the journal, Nature. The report provided evidence that dinosaurs had a coat of downy feathers.

CAR BOMB ATTEMPT
An observant sidewalk vendor who noticed a smoking car and alerted police helped avoid a potentially dangerous situation in Times Square.

GUILTY
Faisal Shahzad, a 30-year-old Pakistan-born U.S. citizen, was arrested as he tried to leave the country and later pleaded guilty to the attempt.

[illegible] DEATHS in a matter of a couple of days in January, hundreds of birds and fish died mysteriously in several states, [illegible]. A devastating April 2010 explosion killed 29 miners and injured others; the mining company had a history of safety and environmental infractions. NEANDERTHAL DNA German scientists partially reconstructed the Neanderthal genome and proved the survival of the genome in modern humans.

2ND TIER
Nearly 100 tons of dead fish, mostly sardines, washed up on a Brazilian beach and reports of other mass deaths came from Italy and France.

While theories about the mass deaths included everything from cold stress and fireworks to hail, many scientists suggested that the various occurrences were merely coincidental.

NATURE

THE 'HOLE' STORY

A massive sinkhole in Guatemala City opened up and swallowed a 3-story building after Tropical Storm Agatha flooded the area with more than three feet of rain in May and June.

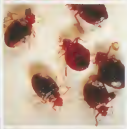

UNRELENTING RAIN

Nashville suffered its worst flood in more than 80 years after storms dumped more than 13 inches of rain on the region in two days. Buildings were flooded and more than 30 died.

LA NIÑA MONSOONS

Nearly 2,000 were killed and an estimated one quarter of the land in Pakistan was flooded in July. Miles of highway and railways and acres of farmland were ruined.

SLEEP TIGHT

Bedbugs terrorized the nation, invading hotels and stores nationwide. Because of the problem, a National Bedbug Registry allowed travelers to investigate hotels before checking in.

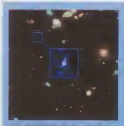

OUT OF THIS WORLD

A solstice lunar eclipse — the first since 1638 — occurred on Dec. 21, 2010, and was visible across North America.

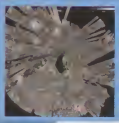

MINING MATTERS

In recent years, 51 coal mines in West Virginia have contributed 30,000 mining jobs to the state's economy and its status as the nation's largest underground coal source.

OLDEST GALAXY

NASA's Hubble Space Telescope discovered a small star cluster 13.2 billion light years away; the Milky Way was 100 times greater in size.

LUNAR WATER

A probe found millions of tons of water ice at the Moon's north pole. The water source could be used to sustain a moon base or generate oxygen.

NEW PLANETS

NASA announced that its Kepler Telescope had identified 54 planets that could sustain human life. Conditions conducive to liquid water meant the planets might be inhabitable.

LAST SHUTTLE

The third space shuttle flight of 2011 — and NASA's very last shuttle flight ever — was scheduled for Atlantis on June 28, 2011.

/OIL SPILL IN THE GULF

BRITISH PETROLEUM

CEO Tony Hayward testified before the House Energy and Commerce Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee. Hayward resigned from his post on July 27, 2010.

205 MILLION GALLONS

The amount of crude oil that spilled into the Gulf of Mexico made this the world's largest accidental oil spill in history. After five months, the well was declared effectively dead.

THE PEOPLE SPEAK

BP station boycotts and anti-BP social media groups as well as traditional protests, like this one in Vienna, Austria, allowed people to make their feelings about the oil spill known

BOUND TO HAPPEN

The follow-up report by the National Commission on the BP Deepwater Horizon Oil Spill and Offshore Drilling said 'systemic problems caused the blowout/oil spill and only 'significant reform' could prevent future spills

THE STATS

BP oil rig Deepwater Horizon exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, killing 11 men and injuring 17 workers. In late April, BP estimated the resulting leak at about 5,000 barrels (210,000 gallons) a day.

In June, the government produced other figures, estimating that 30,000 - 65,000 barrels (as much as 2.7 million gallons) of crude was pumping into the gulf each day.

The President addressed the nation after traveling to the gulf to survey the damage made to the Louisiana coastline.

For months, controlled burns were conducted at sea to help prevent any further spreading of the oil to the shoreline. Coastline in four states was affected.

The nation was able to survey the oil escaping from the leak site via BP's live video feed, assuring the public that the leak would be taken care of.

BP projected that they had already spent $2 billion on clean-up efforts by June. The budget tallied $20 billion over three years.

HOW TO PROPERLY WASH OIL-COVERED BIRDS

STEP 1

Gently flush eyes with warm saline solution. Swab oil from nostrils and bill. Remove any oil from stomach with tube.

STEP 2

Wash oil from body and wings with a dishwashing solution. Make sure to wipe the feathers in the direction they are growing.

STEP 3

Repeat 3-4 times until oil is completely washed away, then gently towel dry bird. Bird will be ready for release in 2-4 days.

contamination is often deadly for birds if they are not properly washed and cared for. Oil reverses birds' water resistant feathers, making them vulnerable to temperature change. Oily feathers also make it impossible for birds to fly and can even drag them underwater to drown. The oil can also cause internal harm when birds try to preen the oil from their feathers. It can cause kidney, liver and reproductive damage among other things.

Scientists and other volunteers worked on all kinds of wildlife affected by the spill. The processes for cleaning birds, turtles and dolphins varied, as did survivors' chances for recovery. Thousands of birds and dozens of turtles and dolphins perished.

In addition to the casualties and the damage to wildlife, there are numerous other long-term effects. Human health issues included increased risk of cancer and other ailments, as well as escalated stress. Two of the region's other major industries (tourism and seafood) were shut down immediately and suffered lasting losses. Louisiana traditionally contributed a third of the nation's shrimp, oysters, crab and crawfish and, despite massive marketing campaigns, hotels and resorts on the gulf shore suffered decreased occupancy throughout the summer.

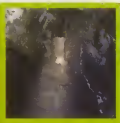

By June, 356,000 barrels had been collected from the water's surface and nearly 1,240 miles worth of booms had been set up to prevent oil from reaching the shoreline.

While four wildlife rehabilitation centers were established in response to the oil spill, 36 national wildlife sanctuaries were threatened.

Mexico, Norway, Canada and the Netherlands all donated equipment (such as the water-skimming system on the right) to aid in the clean-up efforts.

After nearly three months, the leak was finally capped, but not before the effects of the spill could be seen in photos that were taken from space.

It was estimated that more than 125 miles of Louisiana shoreline was contaminated with the washed up crude oil.

Discoverer Enterprise, a deepwater drilling vessel, aided in recovering the spilled oil gushing from the leak site after a cap was placed in June.
